Free Seminar with Bonallack & Bishop Solicitors

13 Ways to Protect Your Business, 24th November 2008

Salisbury solicitors Bonallack and Bishop are holding a FREE seminar, '13 Ways to Protect Your Business', on for Monday 24th November, from 5.30-7.30pm at the Grasmere House Hotel, Salisbury. Several of Salisbury's leading business people will speak on a range of subjects to help business owners and managers ensure that their company is covered against possible disasters.

Tim Bishop, Senior Partner at Bonallack and Bishop, says, 'The seminar will be full of practical tips to safeguard your firm and is designed to be particularly relevant in light of the credit crunch. If you don't come away with at least one really good idea to put into practice in your own business straightaway, we will be disappointed.'

The seminar will be run in association with Business Link South-West, who provide free business support and advice both online and through local advisers. Nigel Charman, one of Business Link's advisers in Salisbury commented, 'All the topics at the seminar are very relevant to today's climate, particularly Debt Collection and IT Protection, which I'm finding are issues for a lot of local businesses at the moment.'

Following the presentations refreshments will be served, giving those attending a chance to network.

Speakers:

- Robert Newman, Moore Stephens, 'Financial Control'
- Tim Bishop, Bonallack & Bishop Solicitors, 'Credit Control and Debt Recovery'
- Alistair Barrett, What No Safety Services Ltd, 'Risk Assessment'
- Barry Goodridge, ITSE Ltd, 'How Safe is Your Data?'
- Tom Clay, Beer & Young, 'Banking Relations'
- Alan Jenner, Bonallack & Bishop Solicitors, 'Employment Law Protection'
